

GOVERNMENT-ASSISTED REFUGEE (GAR) ARRIVALS IN BC | 2025

REPORTING PERIOD:
JANUARY 1—DECEMBER 31, 2025

This annual bulletin provides an overview of Government-Assisted Refugee arrivals to British Columbia between January 1—December 31, 2025. It summarizes arrival numbers and provides analysis of what these figures mean for the province's resettlement landscape.

ARRIVALS

The data captures how Government-Assisted Refugees arrived and moved within BC in 2025. Below is an explanation of each category and what it means for service providers and communities.

- Direct arrivals represent GAR families who came straight to BC through the federal Resettlement Assistance Program (RAP). In 2025, 1,528 individuals (728 households) arrived directly to BC.
- Secondary migrants are GARs who first settled in another province but later moved to BC. 207 individuals (103 households) did so in 2025.
- Self-relocated within BC refers to GARs moving between BC communities after their initial placement. 79 individuals (53 households) were part of this group.

TOP 5 SOURCE COUNTRIES

The majority of Government-Assisted Refugees arriving in BC in 2025 originated from Burma (Myanmar), followed by Afghanistan and Somalia. Together, these countries accounted for over 56% of all GAR arrivals.

GOVERNMENT-ASSISTED REFUGEE (GAR)

A person who is outside Canada and has been determined to be a Convention refugee and who receives financial and other support from the Government of Canada or Province of Quebec for up to one year after their arrival in Canada.

GARs are selected from applicants referred by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and other referral organizations.

AGE AND GENDER DISTRIBUTION

Over half (57%) of GARRs arriving in 2025 were adults over 19 years of age, with the remaining 43% being children and youth under 18. The female/male balance was relatively even across age groups.

TOP 5 DESTINATIONS BY MUNICIPALITY

TOP 5 LANGUAGES SPOKEN

The most commonly spoken languages among new arrivals were Rohingya, Arabic, Somali, Dari, and Spanish. These reflect the linguistic diversity of GARR populations and highlight the importance of interpretation and culturally appropriate settlement supports.

ALL LANGUAGES SPOKEN AMONG GAR ARRIVALS

Across all GAR arrivals, Rohingya and Arabic speakers made up the largest language groups. This diversity emphasizes the continued need for multilingual resources and language-specific support in housing, health, and employment programs.

SELF-RELOCATED ORIGINAL DESTINATIONS

A small number of GARs relocated to BC from other provinces. Such movements indicate ongoing secondary migration motivated by family connections or perceived opportunities in employment and housing in BC.

SUMMARY OF KEY INSIGHTS – 2025

The data for 2025 reinforces BC's continued role as a key destination for Government-Assisted Refugees in Canada. Arrivals are family-oriented, multilingual, and concentrated in urban centres, particularly Surrey and Burnaby. The majority originate from Burma (Myanmar), Afghanistan, and Somalia, aligning with global humanitarian priorities.

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN MYANMAR (BURMA)

Myanmar continues to face overlapping humanitarian crises caused by years of armed conflict, persecution of ethnic minorities, and political instability following the 2021 military coup. Violence between the army and ethnic armed groups in Kachin, Shan, Kayin, and Rakhine States has displaced hundreds of thousands of people, many of whom are women and children.

The Rohingya, a Muslim minority group in Rakhine State, remain the most persecuted. Denied citizenship under Myanmar's 1982 Citizenship Law, they are effectively stateless and continue to face systematic violence, restrictions on movement, and denial of basic services. More than a million Rohingya have fled since 2017, primarily to Bangladesh, where many remain in refugee camps.

Across the country, limited humanitarian access, civilian casualties, and the destruction of infrastructure have deepened vulnerability. Ongoing displacement and discrimination leave millions in need of aid or resettlement options through international programs, including Canada's Government-Assisted Refugee pathway.

WHY THERE ARE SO MANY ROHINGYA REFUGEES

The Rohingya have endured decades of exclusion and targeted violence. Large-scale military campaigns have driven repeated mass exoduses, most recently in 2017 when villages were burned and civilians killed. As stateless people, they cannot return safely or rebuild lives in Myanmar, prompting global resettlement efforts.

For British Columbia, the high number of GARs from Myanmar reflects these push factors: persecution, lack of citizenship, long-term displacement in camps, and Canada's commitment to providing durable solutions for the most at-risk refugee populations.

A push factor is something that forces or motivates people to leave their home country or community.

Relating to migration and refugees, push factors are the negative conditions that “push” people away and drive people to seek safety elsewhere, such as:

- Conflict and war
- Persecution
- Human rights abuses

Pull factors are the positive conditions that attract people to a new place, such as safety, education, jobs, or family reunification.
